ABSTRACT

Costs at U.S. educational institutions for 1984-1985 are identified. A listing of monthly maintenance rates (MMR) by college within each state covers room, board, and incidentals, and makes no distinction between on-campus and off-campus living. The MMR data and guidelines about additional expenses are for foreign students in typical full-time undergraduate and graduate programs. Another listing is presented of costs at about 1,000 schools, based on data obtained by the Institute of International Education's (IEE) 1984 Tuition, Fees, and Academic Calendar Survey. For each school, MMR data are presented on out-of-state and in-state tuition, fees, the type of academic calendar used and dates of each academic period (including summer sessions), registration dates, and credit loads. Additional fees required by foreign students but not of U.S. residents are also listed for each school by type and amount of fees. These special fees include required health insurance, special services or counseling fees, application fees and subcharges, advance deposits, and fees for credential evaluations. The system for determining MMR, which is based on the Bureau of Labor Statistics system, uses Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas, costs components (e.g., food, housing), inflation adjustment, and special foreign student adjustment. The Institute of International Education was founded over half a century ago to promote peace and understanding through education and cultural exchanges. At present it is the largest not-for-profit organization in this field.

The Institute fulfills its mission through its service to sponsors—foundations, corporations, governmental agencies, and international organizations—and through its services to educational institutions and the general public. Services to its sponsors are self-supporting; services to educational institutions and the general public are made possible through contributions from individuals, foundations, and corporations.

Among the services made possible through contributions are information and counseling, student hospitality programs, a research and reference library, information service, and the publications relating to the field of international education. Contributions to the Institute are tax deductible.

COSTS AT U.S. EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS

Background

Since the 1950s, the Institute of International Education, under contract to the U.S. government, has been producing an annual listing of selected U.S. colleges and universities that includes their academic calendars, tuition, fees, and suggested monthly maintenance rates. This book was originally based on annual surveys of colleges and universities and was designed primarily to ascertain costs on individual U.S. campuses in order to set monthly maintenance allowances for students in IIE-administered programs. Over the years, others began to rely on the rates resulting from these surveys, and the book came to be used for general reference both by overseas counseling centers and by organizations sponsoring foreign student programs.

With the wider use of this publication, the survey method no longer seemed suitable for the collection of all of the data. While this method yielded the best current information on college calendars, tuition, and fees, it did not provide reliable, consistent data for monthly maintenance rates.

In 1979, therefore, IIE presented to the Advisory Committee on Foreign Student Maintenance Rates a new system for establishing Monthly Maintenance Rates (MMRs), based upon the Bureau of Labor Statistics' (BLS) annual review of family budgets in 40 urban and five nonmetropolian areas within the United States. The BLS budgets were based on expenditures required for the purchase, within each geographic area, of a complex grouping of goods and services.

The committee agreed on the adoption of the BLS-based system, reasoning that the consistent and objective BLS basis for computing maintenance rates was preferable to one that might lend itself to arbitrary and subjective judgements. A fair and adequate maintenance allowance would be based on the BLS intermediate-level family costs (rather than on high-level or low-level costs). Such a system would lend itself to annual updating based on reliable data on living costs in all areas of the United States. Furthermore, it appeared appropriate to use the BLS single-adult consumption figure, which represents 37% of the consumption of the American family of four at the intermediate level. Finally, this adjusted maintenance rate would be further adjusted to reflect projected inflation and the special needs of foreign students.

As an economy measure, in the fall of 1982, BLS discontinued the annual review of family budgets on which the IIE MMR had been based. In order to continue to provide these data, IIE, after consulting with BLS, began to use the Consumer Price Index to update the latest available family budgets. All data on price changes for MMR calculations are now obtained from the CPI Detailed Report published monthly by the BLS.

Calculating MMR's

The system for calculating Monthly Maintenance Rates is based on the following:

1. Location: Each U.S. institution is located in one of 51 geographic areas as defined by the classification system of Metropolitan Statistical Areas 1983 (U.S. Office of Management and Budget). This classification system is updated periodically, in accordance with the latest population figures. Reclassification can result in changes in the MMRs for institutions.

   Where appropriate, Consolidated Metropolitan Statistical Areas (CMSAs) are used instead of Metropolitan Statistical Areas (MSAs) to locate institutions more accurately. These CMSAs cover wider geographic areas than the MSAs and allow institutions in different adjacent MSAs, but in communities with strong economic and social ties, to be included in the same category. Institutions in the New England states are located according to New England County Metropolitan Areas (NECMAs), which are more inclusive than the corresponding MSAs, because MSAs are defined in terms of cities and towns in New England rather than counties as in the rest of the states.

   Revisions of the metropolitan classification system based on the 1980 Census figures recently resulted in some additions and deletions to the definitions of the CMSAs amd MSAs. Whenever such a change meant a lower MMR than in the previous year, IIE maintained the 1983/84 rate in order to prevent hardships for students who have incurred living expenses based on the higher allowance.

2. Cost Components: A basic budget for each area is calculated by applying the percentage change in the appropriate CPI index to purchase costs for the component parts of the latest available intermediate-level family budget. The component parts selected are as follows:

a. Food: IIE uses the figure for "total food" expenditures as published by BLS. This figure includes food-at-home costs and an allowance for a specified number of meals away from home.

b. Housing: The figure for renting rather than home ownership is used by IIE; additionally, the separate allocation for "house furnishings and operations" is included, to cover items which foreign students must acquire and cannot, as nonresidents, be expected to own.

c. Transportation: The "total transportation" component is included rather than the "automobile owners" figure, which is slightly higher. This figure is weighted to give average costs for a stated proportion of automobile owners and nonowners in each area. Even though some foreign students may find it necessary to own automobiles, most who live in areas with adequate mass transit do not.

d. Other Components: The published figures for clothing, personal care, medical care, and other goods and services are included.

3. Adjustments to the Base Amount: The component parts are summed to arrive at an annual base amount. The base is then adjusted in the following manner:

a. Single adult adjustment: The base amount, calculated for a family of four, is adjusted following BLS guidelines for a single adult under 35 years of age, resulting in a base figure equal to 37% of the family budget.

b. Inflation adjustment: Because MMRs must forecast costs for the academic year ahead, the annual base figures are further adjusted for anticipated inflation. IIE makes MMRs sensitive to inflation rates in different parts of the country by using actual inflation rates from the previous year (as indicated in CPI data) to predict inflation. Since inflation rates rarely remain precisely the same from year to year, the resulting MMRs may be somewhat over- or under-estimated. These errors-in-prediction are counterbalanced in the following year's MMRs. The 1983/84 and 1984/85 MMRs and the net percentage change are shown in the table on page iii.

c. Special foreign-student adjustment: It is generally accepted that a foreign student, as compared to a single U.S. resident under 35 years of age, encounters additional expenses because of his or her relatively short-term residence in an often unfamiliar society. To account for these additional expenses, an additional 5% is added to the base figure.

Using This Book

Many different people and organizations should find this publication useful. It provides organizational sponsors with reliable information for all parts of the country; for foreign governments, foreign students and their counselors overseas, it provides the kind of specific information that is essential for realistic financial planning; and foreign student advisers will no doubt welcome information—for publication in catalogs and inclusion in visa certificates—that eliminates the need for a local estimate of costs.

There are three types of data in this book. The first is the Monthly Maintenance Rate (MMR) at specific U.S. institutions. The list begins on page 1 and proceeds alphabetically by institution within state: the "state" column uses the standard two-letter abbreviations of the U.S. Postal Service. The MMR covers room, board, and incidentals; it makes no distinction between on- and off-campus living. In areas where local housing shortages make it difficult to obtain accommodations at reasonable prices, costs may be considerably higher—particularly for students who do not make arrangements well in advance of their arrival. Books, insurance, and other costs are additional and are covered below. The MMR and guidelines for additional expenses assume a foreign student in typical full-time undergraduate and graduate programs of study. They are not appropriate for short-term students, study-tour fellows, or participants in programs with exceptional requirements. Sponsors may, of course, stipulate MMRs above or below those presented in this book, which is intended only as a guide.

The second type of data specifies costs and other information at approximately 1,000 institutions; the list begins on page 45. The information in this section is provided by the institutions in response to IIE's "Tuition, Fees, and Academic Calendar Survey"; the cut-off date for responses was July 6, 1984. When institutions fail to respond, IIE lists information from the previous year's survey (identified by the letter "L"). This second list gives for each school both out-of-state and in-state tuition, fees, the academic calendar, the dates of each academic period (including summer sessions), registration dates, and credit load. States are listed alphabetically, as are institutions within states. The codes used are explained on page 44.

Third, this year Costs book lists additional fees required of foreign students but not of U.S. residents. These data were gathered along with tuition and calendar information. A list of institutions requiring special fees for sponsored and/or nonsponsored foreign students begins on page 177 and specifies the type and amount of the fee(s). States are listed alphabetically. These special fees include required health insurance, special services or counseling fees, application fees and surcharges, advance deposits, and fees for credential evaluations.

Additional Expenses and Allowances

After ascertaining the MMR, individual students and program sponsors should be prepared for certain additional expenses and allowances. Not all of these will be necessary in every case, but their possible effect on budgets should at least be considered. They are as follows:

• "Settling-in" Expenses of $300-$1,000. These expenses will depend, in part, on whether the student lives on-campus or off-campus, whether he or she has confirmed arrangements for housing in advance, and if not, whether housing shortages make such arrangements difficult.

• Clothing Allowance. Expenses are most likely for students coming from one kind of climate to another. A range of $300-$600 is suggested for a single student.

• Accident and Health Insurance. Given the high cost of medical care in the United States, this is an essential expenditure. Major medical insurance should be part of any nonsponsored student's insurance plan. Allow at least $400 annually for single students.

• Expenses of Maintaining an Automobile. It is impossible to generalize about this except to say that the costs of purchase, maintenance, gasoline, and insurance are high. Foreign students and scholars should try to avoid automobile ownership unless there is no alternative means of local transportation.

• Additional Costs for Accompanying Dependents. These will be found in a table at the end of this page.

• Vacation Periods. Living expenses are covered by the basic MMR, but some persons may wish to travel, which would be an additional expense. Students living in university housing may have additional expenses if that housing is closed during vacation periods.

• Books. At least $400 should be allowed annually. In some fields, costs for required books and special supplies can be considerably higher.

• Additional Equipment and Materials. This need depends very much on the field of study. Instruments for an architectural student, for example, might well come to $200 or more; a calculator for an engineering student could cost from $50 to $300; art supplies for a fine arts student could cost from $300 to $1,200 per year. All students will want to consider purchasing a typewriter (from $150 to $300 new, or $50 to $100 used, for a manual model). If a student plans to pay someone for typing, about $40 for each semester course (five courses a semester is a full program) may be expected if there are any number of papers to be done.

• Field Trips. These may be required in certain areas of study. Transportation, meals, and hotels for such trips are major expenses not included in the MMR.

• Study- or Research-Related Travel. In addition to field trips, students may sometimes find it necessary to travel in order to complete the research for a paper or thesis. These costs can be very high and are not included in the MMR.

• Thesis/Dissertation and Related Research Costs. An unavoidable expense for doctoral candidates, and one that may apply to a lesser extent to master's candidates. Research costs vary widely depending on the field and the nature of the study. Dissertation costs include typing, reproduction, and sometimes binding, and can range from $500 to $1,000. Data processing services, if needed, can be very expensive. A master's thesis includes most of the above costs, although the range should be somewhat lower.

Senior Student Grantee/Scholar Supplement

There is a final category of additional expense which should be considered separately from the foregoing: i.e., the across-the-board percentage increment that sponsors may wish to add to the basic MMR for their senior student grantees or scholars who have been accustomed to a more comfortable level of expenditure. This percentage could range up to 50%.

Suggested Increases in the Monthly Maintenance Rate (MMR) for Dependent Allowances

1 dependent	1.5	$ 900
2 dependents	1.7	1,020

TUITION, FEES, AND ACADEMIC CALENDARS

The charges and dates reported in this section are generally for the 1984/85 academic year. If current year costs were unavailable at press time, 1983/84 charges were included.

The following is an explanation of each column:

Column 1—CODE	These are unique ID numbers based on the National Research Council coding system.
Column 2—INSTITUTION	Self-explanatory.
Column 3—MMR	The monthly maintenance rate is explained in the introduction.
Column 4—UG TUIT FEES Column 5—GR TUIT FEES	Both out-of-state (foreign) and in-state tuition and fees are given. Tuition charges for institutions with a single tuition charge for all students are given as out-of-state tuition and fees. In some cases, tuition charges include fees. Since a breakdown of the two charges was not always provided, a combined figure is indicated with an "F." AY—Academic Year, S1—First summer session, etc.
Column 6—CAL	School Calendar. S—Semester, Q—Quarter, T—Trimester, 4—"4-1-4", 0—Other.
Column 7—ACADEMIC DATES	Academic Period. AY1—First academic period, etc. S1—First summer session, etc.
Column 8—REGISTER	Registration date for the fall term.
Column 9—LOAD	Full-time credit or course load, generally specified per academic period.

CODE SYMBOLS

O/S—Out-of-state/foreign tuition and fees
I/S—In-state tuition and fees

UG—Undergraduate student
GR—Graduate student

AV—Average of rates for different academic levels
CR—Per credit
CO—Per course
E—Estimated
F—Fees included
L—Last year's tuition and fees
NT—No tuition charges
